Jean- François DEMEURE

French artist.

Born in 1946, lives and works in Paris and Limoges.

In the Nuage de Lait series, Jean-François Demeure plays with words and materials, and this is evident in his compositions. The various materials are worked in all their forms, giving life to a series of mineral-like and poetic sculptures. The artist's works are always imbued with the notion of time; here, that of memory the cloud of milk evoking the one his grandmother used to pour into his tea but they also refer to meteorological time through their form and colors.

A marble cloud floats above a porcelain cream pitcher; suspended between the lightness of steam and the heaviness of stone, the artist maintains an ambiguity between the sensitivity of the evocation and the density of the material. Jean François Demeure presents creations that play with the contrasts of materials, curves, and textures, ranging from roughly hewn, almost raw granite to the delicacy and luster of porcelain tableware. In his series of vertical sculptures, the artist maintains the robust balance of his compositions while playing with the interplay of balance and words.
