Émilie MARIE

French artist.

Lives and works in Paris.

Straddling the line between the intimate and the imaginary, Emilie Marie weaves a dialogue and draws her artistic language from aquatic, mineral, celestial, and plant-inspired nuances and forms. Her works sensitively connect energies that are at times contradictory, finding their balance between torment and ecstasy. Emilie Marie's paintings bring to the surface her passionate emotions those that arise when skin touches skin and magic happens, when silky bodies blend together, and desires merge like the sun and the sea at sunset. Areas that are almost impenetrable, hard as rock, flirt with areas that are limpid, fluid, and always radiant with light. The two resist each other, brush against one another on the verge of symbiosis, and in a sensual flow; they float, branch out, draw each other in, and take root within one another.

The artist's gestures are always pure because they are directly connected to her deepest emotions and her physical memory. Whether on canvas or loose pieces of fabric, she moves across the floor in dance-like, fluid, and instinctive movements. Between ethereal caresses and volcanic intensity, her brushstrokes imbued with passion and tenderness pour out inks, acrylics, and iridescent pigments, bringing these shimmering moments to life. Through this metaphorical language, Emilie Marie transcends the feelings of lovers who, beneath the celestial vault, secretly draw one another in and unite in silence, until day breaks once more.
